Ordering new books

Ray Schroff is a reference librarian at the Albany branch of the Alameda County Library.

By RAY SCHROFF

Regularly, people come into the Albany Library asking for specific books. This is probably the best way that we librarians have of assessing the reading needs of the public we serve, but it is just one aspect of the process we use in selecting books for our diverse community. One vital link in this operation is the Baker and Taylor Company, a Reno wholesale book distributor. Every month they send us a list describing a vast array of books to be published two months later. From this list, with its short annotations on the latest works of authors like John LeCarre, Catherine Cookson and Irving Wallace, we choose those titles that people have requested or that we think

Council okays permit before sparse crowd

By GORDON RADDUE

EL CERRITO — With just one angry outburst from an audience about one-tenth the size of the crowd of two weeks ago, the City Council Monday left the door open for Chuck E. Cheese to dart into the El Cerrito Plaza.

And, reports of his reluctance notwithstanding, Chuck E. might just come in after all.

The council voted 4-1, James Allen Jr. dissenting, to adopt a resolution approving a use permit for a Chuck E. Cheese's Pizza Time Theatre at the Plaza. On the advice of Assistant City Attorney William Bullard, the council incorporated its findings and 18 conditions into the resolution.

The only reaction from the audience came from local resident Kenneth Johnson, who bitterly remarked to the council: "Twenty-five percent of you are in New York City and 25 percent are out to lunch."

After the meeting, Ned Robinson, attorney for the Homart Development Co., owner of the Plaza, and Pizza Time Theatre representative Michael Strait both indicated that there is a strong possibility that Chuck E. Cheese will move into the location occupied for nearly 25 years by the Kirby's restaurant complex.

Strait, national real estate and accounts manager for Sunnyvale-based Pizza Time Theatre, said he felt the firm could live with the 50 square feet per video game machine restriction imposed earlier by the Planning Commission and upheld two weeks ago by the council.

Council delays vote on pension

By JUDY POLUMBAUM

ALBANY — The Albany City Council this week relaxed its push to get a pension reform measure on the November ballot, with council members preferring to avoid hasty action and take more time to win over voters.

The council heard Monday from actuary William Smith of the San Francisco consulting firm Milliman and Robertson, which is preparing a new study of Albany's troubled pension plan.

Smith said the advantages of an early vote would be minimal and advised against rushing to the polls.

Any pension reform measure probably would entail a tax increase, which would require a two-thirds majority to pass.

Vice Mayor Edward McManus noted that a November vote would not affect the 1983-84 tax rate, which must be set during the summer, and council member William Johns agreed that an April vote would make more sense, saying the wait would allow time to "do it right."

Albany's pension plan covers fire and police department employees hired up to mid-1971, when the city joined the state-run Public Employ-

These daily phone calls are a lifeline to shut-ins

Telecare is run by caring volunteers

By JIM GRODNIK

ALBANY — When Barbara Boscovich retired from her job as a switchboard operator 14 years ago, she vowed she would never answer another phone call.

"I didn't. I started calling out," said Boscovich, 68, an Albany resident who is founder and director of the Tele-Care volunteer program at Herrick Hospital in Berkeley.

Tele-Care is an all-volunteer service that provides morning phone calls to ill and isolated people every morning, 365 days a year.

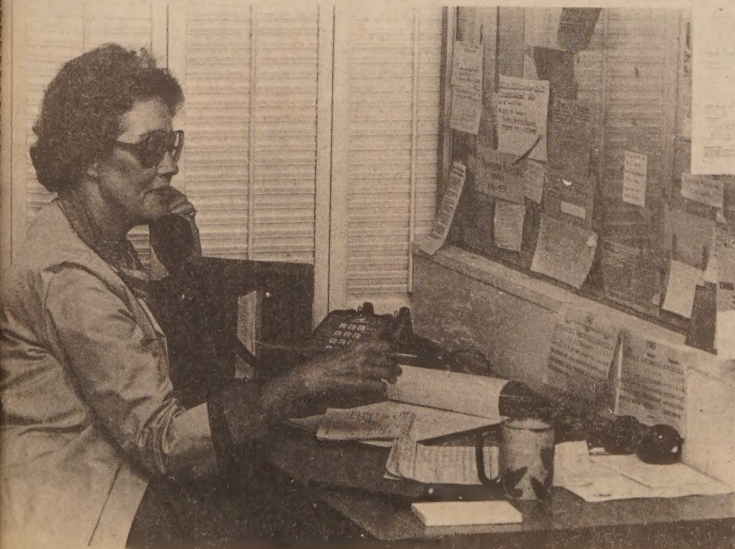

The purpose is twofold. First, the morning calls are social. Many of the people called are disabled and seldom leave their homes. Some have outlived their friends. This may be the only call they get all day and they wait for it eagerly.

Second, the calls are to check on the well-being of the people whom the volunteer workers refer to as "pets." If a call goes unanswered, the volunteer calls a neighbor or relative on a list provided by the person. Boscovich estimates that 50 or 60 people have been rescued after being too ill to answer their phones.

In Berkeley's Herrick Hospital one recent morning, Ginger Ward of Kensington, and Muriel Rose and Loris Mann, both from Berkeley, sat at their desks making calls.

"Good morning, good morning, good morning," Ward's cheery voice sang into the phone. "Are you going ees Retirement System. Largely as a result of a 1969 court decision tying pension benefits to current salaries (rather than salaries held at the time of retirement), the city's pension obligations have ballooned in recent years and city officials have been forced to find extra sources of funds.

An actuary report prepared last summer showed the system was headed for bankruptcy, barring massive infusions of tax dollars or major reforms.

Although Smith's new report will not be ready until next week, he presented what he considered his key findings to the council Monday.

He suggested the most realistic reform would be a cap on cost-of-living increases for "future accruals" — which would affect only employees covered by the plan who have not yet retired.

Although such a reform would save the city and taxpayers money, the amount would be small in relation to the city's overall obligations.

Smith virtually ruled out capping cost-of-living increases for all beneficiaries, saying the courts would almost certainly overturn such a change.

He projected that total benefit payments under the existing plan will amount to $77 million over the next 80 years, while the total with a two-percent cap on future accruals would be $64 million.

But the difference between those two figures is not as great as it seems; calculated in terms of "present value," or the money needed now to generate those amounts over time, the figures would be $12.2 million and $10.2 million.

Smith calculated that the city would have to impose a special pension tax amounting to .1550 percent per $100 assessed valuation to cover its obligations under both the old plan and the new state-run plan. With a cap on future accruals under the old plan, that tax rate would drop to .1337 percent.

He said that from the point of view of individual taxpayers, the difference would be negligible — some $20 dollars for the owner of a $100,000 home.

The city council last year levied a special pension tax of about .099 percent to raise more than $300,000, and plans to adopt a similar tax as part of the fiscal 1983-84 budget.

Smith promised to submit his final report by next week, and the council scheduled a work session to discuss it July 5.

In other action Monday, the City Council:

- Endorsed California Transportation Department plans for a new southbound off-ramp from Interstate 80 into Albany that would replace the existing Cleveland Street exit and also entail closing the Pierce Street ramps.

Caltrans is planning two major highway projects which converge in Albany — the reconstruction of I-80 and the conversion of Hoffman Boulevard into an improved freeway. Construction of the Albany sections is scheduled for 1986-89.

The new I-80 ramp, a modification of previous plans adopted after a series of public hearings, would channel traffic to the bay side of both highways.

Public Works Director Robert Guletz said the design would avoid what is now a dangerous snarl under the Buchanan Street overpass, redirect traffic that now passes through residential neighborhoods to major streets and provide better access to Golden Gate Fields and the waterfront.

Caltrans representatives said 2,600 cars a day use the existing Cleveland ramp, and only 10 percent of those cars are destined for the immediate residential area.

- Authorized a $4,553 job to improve access for the handicapped to restrooms at the Community Center in University Village. The money would come out of a $15,000 federal grant for such improvements to city facilities. The work will be done by Rissanen Construction, which has nearly finished similar improvements at the Albany library.

- Agreed with a suggestion from Guletz to donate an old addressograph machine to the Albany Chamber of Commerce. "It's been kicking around our back room for years; it's in our way and we have absolutely no use for it," Guletz said.

Sharon and Dan Bell

EL CERRITO — Police Detective Dan Bell and his wife, Sharon, have more than their marriage in common — each has been named tops in their fields.

Dan Bell was honored June 8 by the Albany/El Cerrito Exchange Club as the city's "Police Officer of the Year."

Sharon Bell was honored June 10 as Alta Bates Hospital's "Nurse of the Year" in ceremonies at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Oakland.

Dan Bell has been an El Cerrito officer for 16 years, while his wife has been a nurse 21 years.

He won his award for outstanding work with juveniles. He founded the Youth Drop-In Center in El Cerrito, runs the Save-Our-Children program and directs an extensive elementary school lectures, including an annual drive.

Sharon Bell, a registered nurse, won her award for outstanding planning of medical rooms at Alta Bates and the best performance in a small operating budget of any nurse in the area.

She also helped make a film for exporters that is considered a classic in the field.

The Bells, married 16 years and local residents, have two boys, ages 10 and 14.

Albany library sets games, films, crafts

"Terran Expedition 24712 is trapped on planet Zenon by the forces of Imperial Hodor. Your mission, as captain of the Starship Constellation is to blast a corridor through the star-cruisers, eyeships, warpwags, bipods and other imperial warcraft to beam up the trapped explorers."

So begins Space Escape, the new reading game available this summer to children using the 12 branches of the Alameda County Library system.

Tickets to an Oakland A's baseball game will be awarded to the winning children. Every book the child reads earns a spin of the dial which in turn determines the game progress.

Each child participating in the game will receive an individual copy of the 19 by 27 inch game board. Children may play the game during library hours after the last day of school.

Other activities for the children in Alameda County's libraries include films, stories, and craft activities.

Some branches offer limited enrollment volunteer work programs for children 12 to 14 years old. All branches will host at least one puppet show.

The Alameda County Library serves the communities of Albany, Castro Valley, Dublin, Fremont, Newark, Pleasanton, San Lorenzo, Union City and unincorporated areas.

Pizza Time real estate director, who argued for Chuck E. Cheese before the Planning Commission April 6 and the City Council two weeks ago. Wheeler had said the 50 square feet limitation would make it economically unfeasible to operate the combination restaurant-video game arcade at the Plaza.

As for the economic health of the Pizza Time chain, Strait conceded that some of the Chuck E. Cheese outlets around the nation were having problems, but added that the firm's cash assets are at $29 million.

Viale, to renegotiate his lease to the Plaza property.

Noting that Pizza Time now holds the lease, Robinson said Kirby's "can't afford to pay the going rate."

Asked if Viale would have an opportunity to renegotiate his lease in the event that Pizza Time property was sold, Robinson said, "It's Homart's decision who it goes to. A lot of people are lining up to buy it."

Robinson said it clear that Chuck E. Cheese is favored by Homart because of its potential to attract younger shoppers to the Plaza.

they will request, as well as new fiction and non-fiction that we think are of interest to our reading public.

The advantage of this system is that the books arrive as soon as they are published, and they come with catalog cards already printed and plastic dust jackets already in place so that they can go right onto our "New Books" shelf. We keep the order lists in a folder on the table with our microfiche catalogs, and many of our readers use the lists to see what we've ordered and to help them choose what they'd like to read.

Another method we use in ordering is a twice-monthly list produced by an Alameda County Library System book selection committee. This committee takes suggestions sent in from all the branch libraries, peruses the many magazines in which books are reviewed and reads the stack of promotional material from publishers. A 150 to 200 page list is compiled and selections are made from that.

Singing their hearts out on a West German tour

By CHARLES FELTON

KENSINGTON — Jennifer Vlahos joined 40 others members of the San Francisco Girls Chorus this week on a two-week singing tour of Germany.

Vlahos, 14, a sophomore at College Preparatory school in Oakland, was undaunted by the prospect of a series of concerts in outdoor amphitheaters across West Germany.

"I'm very excited; this will be my first tour," she said.

The tour, which celebrates the tri-centennial of German-American cultural relations, returns home July 5. For while it looked like it might never take off, the entire German tour was in jeopardy for lack of funds. The chorus needed to raise $60,000 for transportation and expenses.

"We had a luncheon on Thursday, June 9 at the Fairmont Hotel where we performed," said Megan Dey, 13, daughter of Kensington. Bay Area politicians and chorus supporters paid $100 for the lunch. According to chorus director Elizabeth Appling, San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein held an informal auction for the chorus.

"We're definitely going, but we're still around $5,000 short," Appling said before the trip.

The trip to Germany follows on the heels of this year's participation at the White House's Christmas festivities.

"It was all a little rushed, but I liked it anyway," Dey, who attends Portola Junior High, said. "I think it was a good experience."

"In March we performed for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip at Louise M. Davies Symphony Hall," Vlahos said.

Starstruck like the rest of the Bay Area by royalty? Well, we didn't get to see her that well," Dey said.

Appling founded the girls chorus five years ago. "We are one of only three professional girls choruses in the country—and one of 10 of this quality around the world," she said.

The chorus has 165 girls from around the Bay, divided into four categories based upon ability: preparatory, training, intermediate and concert level. There are four conductors for each category. Appling conducts the concert group.

Promotions from one category to the next are based on merit, not age. The chorus also teaches the young women music theory and sight reading.

According to Appling, there was a San Francisco Girls Chorus 40 years ago which was affiliated with the opera. The present chorus still provides girl singers for the opera.

A youngster cannot audition for the chorus until she is 10. You can stay until you're 16," Vlahos said. "You're not even by your musical ability."

"Last year we graduated one girl. This year there'll be two," Appling said. "I'd say four of the six intend to pursue careers in music."

All rehearsals and classes are on the premises of the San Francisco Girls Chorus, 2049 Grove Street, San Francisco, Monday and Wednesday from 4 to 6," said Dey, who would like to sing professionally.

The San Francisco Girls Chorus is now in Germany

Appling estimates that close to half of the chorus members come from the East Bay. Joining Dey and Vlahos from this area are:

- Radha Kramer, also from Kensington;
- Edith Haritatos from El Cerrito;
- Rebecca Coolidge, Sarah Ann Emdy, Rebecca Fink, Erica and Leah Fitschen, Elke Glendenning, Christine Kohlstedt, Wendy McCulley, Cialin Mills, Sarah Norris, Elizabeth Richards, Jennifer Safran, Molly Schwartzburg, Beth Warden and Lara Washburn from Berkeley.

Appling harbors the hope that the S.F. Girls Chorus will grow and prosper:

"My true aim is to make San Francisco for girls what Vienna is for boys," she said. "I want us to take the lead."

The San Francisco Girls Chorus is still soliciting contributions for their trip. Correspondence should be addressed to The San Francisco Girls Chorus, Germany Fund, 2049 Grove Street, San Francisco, CA 94117. For more information, call 392-4880.

The West Campus team won in the 9th-grade competition, Black Pine Circle in the 8th grade and Head Royce in the 7th.

A daily phone call can save a life

"...today?" she asked, making notes on a pad in front of her. The "pet" was going out for a permanent. "Are you going to get beautiful?"

The notes are for tomorrow's call. If someone is getting a laboratory test, the next time Ward calls she'll ask about the results. If they've talked about cooking she'll ask how the dish turned out. The calls go to people in Albany, El Cerrito, Kensington, Berkeley, Alameda, Oakland and San Francisco. Each "pet" leaves the names of two people to call in case of emergency.

In Kensington, the police are to be called and they have a house key for everyone in the program. "The Kensington police are very protective of their citizens," said Boscovich.

Police in larger cities don't have the personnel to respond to unanswered phone calls, but in smaller communities they sometimes do. "The Albany police are very cooperative, they'll go by a house and check," said Boscovich.

The program began with one caller, Boscovich, calling 40 people. Today 45 volunteers take turns throughout the week. More than 250 elderly and disabled people receive the calls.

Boscovich said Tele-Care is a surrogate family to many people. "They can tell us things they would never tell anyone," she said. "They tell us when they feel lonely and neglected."

Boscovich said family and friends of the elderly often don't listen to them. "We're non-judgmental. We feel they need an outlet," she said. "They can relax with us. It doesn't matter if they're dressed. We don't care what they look like, just how they feel."

Mabel Taylor of Albany has been on the receiving end of Tele-Care calls for eight years. She said the callers are like old friends. Taylor, who asked that her age not be used, said she requested a 10:20 a.m. call because the callers are not so busy then and have more time to talk.

The Tele-Care volunteers send out birthday and

Christmas cards to those in the program. Taylor said on holidays the women volunteers are at home cooking and their husbands do the calling.

"It is a treat to hear a man's voice, on a holiday" she said. Taylor sends money to Tele-Care at Christmas, but "not as much as I'd like."

Another value of the program is the peace of mind it provides for relatives of the elderly. Taylor's children don't live in Albany, but "they can rest assured about me, they don't worry," she said.

Another Albany resident, Alice Crockett, 64, is a second-generation tele-pet. Her late mother received a daily call. Now, after a serious heart attack, Crockett is confined to her home and has relied on Tele-Care for 11 years.

She has never met any of her callers, but she said, "I feel like I know them. They all seem to care."

"One says, 'God bless you,' and she really means it," Crockett said. "Her voice is so full of love it makes me feel wonderful."

Anyone in the Bay Area area, especially the widowed and those convalescing from an illness, is eligible for the free Tele-Care service. Volunteers usually call between 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. To register as a Tele-Care member, or to volunteer, call the Herrick volunteer office at 540-4487.

Boscovich, who began volunteer work 14 years ago after her husband died at Herrick, said, "I didn't want to work anymore and I just couldn't sit around."

The result is Tele-Care.

"I became addicted to the program," she said. "The most gratifying part is the warmth and love we bring to people's lives."

Whale-watching trips set

The Oakland-based Whale Center is offering two all-day whale watching trips to the Farallones each month from May to October.

Among the animals which can be seen on the trip are blue, humpback, minke, sei, gray and killer whales, dolphins and porpoises. The Saturday and Sunday trips leave from San Francisco.

For more information and to buy tickets, call the Whale Center at 654-6621. The center is located at 3929 Piedmont Ave. in Oakland.

Neighbors

By LINDA ROSDAHL

Recently enjoying visitors from Japan were El Cerrito residents Dr. James and Carrie Richardson and their neighbors Robie and Fran Robinson. Visiting the Richardson family is 17-year-old Kazuhiko Diago. Kazuhiko is attending school at the American English Center and will be staying in El Cerrito through August. He has enjoyed sightseeing around the Bay Area with the Richardsons and their sons Michael and Stephen.

Staying at the Robinson house are 17-year-old Mayumi Kawamura and 16-year-old Noriko Kimura. The two girls have spent time touring the Bay Area with the Robinsons and will continue living and attending school in El Cerrito through the summer. Kazuhiko, Mayumi and Noriko are all exchange students participating in a program sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Studies. The program is open to students ages 15 to 19 from all parts of the world and allows them to spend a full academic year attending high school in the United States.

A star is born...and Patrick Jason was the name chosen for the newborn son of Albany residents Robert and Pamela Frogge. Patrick was born on May 28 at Kaiser Hospital in Oakland weighing 8 lbs., 1 oz. Proud grandparents are George and Bessie Squiers of Pt. Richmond and Donna Phillips and Delmar Frogge of Indiana. Pamela is the owner of the Sunny Side-Up Beauty Salon on Solano Avenue.

Gail Richardson of El Cerrito was among this year's graduates of Cal-State University, Hayward. Gail, the daughter of Ossie and Mamie Richardson, received a bachelor's degree in business administration. A graduate of El Cerrito High, Gail was presented with a new car as a college graduation gift from her parents. Before starting her career in business, Gail plans to attend Cal-State's summer quarter and to spend a week visiting friends in the San Fernando Valley. She is also making plans to tour Hawaii this summer.

Many local residents aren't aware that the El Cerrito-Albany-Kensington branch of Welcome Wagon makes birth-of-baby calls in addition to welcoming new families to the area. New and expecting mothers are eligible to receive a free basket containing gifts from area merchants and civic information. Mothers and mothers-to-be who would like to take advantage of this free service should contact Karen at 528-1993. Services are limited to a six-month period — three months before childbirth to three months after.

I can always use more information for my column. Please don't hesitate to call me with news of your vacations, house guests, engagements and other social activities. I can be reached at 527-1592.

Pot luck with Olga Bier

I was saying, fruits simply can't be beat as appetizers, salads, main dish accompaniments, or desserts. When in doubt, use a fruit soufflé.

Fruit and cheese makes a simple and sensible end to a meal. However, if you want to get into more involved cooking and sharpen your skills, try a fruit soufflé.

Alas, soufflés do not hold for long, so your menu-planning must be precise. But, if you can do a bit of preparation, you can serve a dessert soufflé and astound the gathered diners. How about this:

Apricot soufflé

Prepare a six-cup soufflé dish by buttering the bottom and sides and then dusting with flour.

In a small saucepan:
melt 2 T. butter
add 2 T. flour
5 T. sugar

Stir with a whip until smooth. Then add a mixture made of:

1/4 c. milk
3 T. apricot liqueur
1/2 c. puree of apricots

This mixture may vary in proportion to your taste. Just be sure the total equals 1 cup. Whisk until smooth and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add 4 egg yolks, one at a time.

This may all be done ahead and left to wait for the final steps just before you sit down to eat dinner.

Then, whip 5 egg whites (one extra) until stiff. Sacrifice a blob of the stiffened whites by beating it into the yolk mixture to "lighten" it. Then fold the yolk mixture gently into the whites.

Spoon into the prepared dish. Run your knife around the edge of the dish. This will enable your soufflé to rise up high and beautifully.

Bake 35 to 40 minutes at 350 degrees until browned and serve at once, sprinkled with powdered sugar. If you should notice that the center is soft or wiggly, it is not done! Though moist, the soufflé must be cooked and light throughout.

Do try your hand at this. Soufflés are so elegant. And if you are really in a hurry, use a jar of pureed baby fruit.

And then there's the mousse

This light and refreshing dessert is easier to make than to spell correctly! Using lemons, which are always available, treat yourself to an easy dessert that makes the meal take on a special air.

Easy lemon mousse

Juice of two large lemons

Zest (rind) of the lemons

1 T. unflavored gelatin

2 T. water

3 eggs, separated

1/2 c. sugar

1 c. whipping cream

In a small saucepan, sprinkle the gelatin over the water and let dissolve for several minutes. Then add to it the lemon juice and heat gently until the gelatin is completely dissolved. Do not boil.

Add the lemon zest to the egg yolks and sugar and beat until creamy. Pour into the gelatin mixture and continue to beat until cool and thickened. (Sometimes this can be hastened by placing the bowl into another bowl of ice.)

Beat 1/2 c. of the cream until firm and set aside. Beat the egg whites until firm and stiff. Gently fold the cream and the egg whites into the cooled gelatin mixture until evenly mixed. (The use of the egg whites and part of the cream extends the function of the cream and cuts calories and cost. Mousses can be made with only whites or only cream, however you wish.)

Pour into a serving dish or individual stemmed glasses and chill. Garnish with the remaining cream, whipped firm and very lightly seasoned with powdered sugar. Mount it on or get out the pastry bag and a small fluted tip and do your stuff.

Another way to serve this is to pour it into a mold lined with split lady fingers (sprinkled with Triple Sec maybe!) and then chill. Unmolding it and decorating with whipped cream and sprigs of mint really makes this a fruit dessert for a celebration.

Libyan plane deal sends local man to jail

Three people, including an Albany man, were arraigned last week on charges of violating the munitions control act by conspiring to sell seven Lockheed C130 military transports to militant Arab leader Col. Moummar Khadafi of Libya.

The planes were property of the Australian government which had put them up for sale through a broker.

Such sales need approval of the president of the United States, and Libya is one of the countries prohibited by U.S. Department of State regulations from purchasing C130s.

In an affidavit submitted in support of a criminal complaint, assistants Gene D. King said the defendants represented themselves to undercover agents as being in touch with people who would put up $15.1 million for the deal.

Martin Christiansen, 47, of Winfield, Kan., was said to have stated that a false end-user document would be presented to the State Department signifying the aircraft as being destined for Iraq.

The three defendants were arrested June 14 in an Emeryville motel after one of them said his Libyan contacts could no longer provide the money.

Besides Christiansen, the defendants were Johannes Niemz, 56, a Brazilian citizen, and Peter M. Zambunga, 54, of Albany, a former government employee. Another man, Voltaire Berceles, was named in the complaint and was a fugitive.

U.S. Magistrate Owen Woodruff set bail at $1 million for each defendant but scheduled hearings on possible bail reduction. Christiansen and Zambunga said they had inadequate funds and public defenders were appointed by Woodruff to represent them.

Red Cross coffers drained by disasters

The Red Cross, drained by a rash of floods and tornadoes and the recent Coalinga earthquake, has launched a campaign to raise $12 million so it can continue to give emergency aid to victims of disasters.

The announcement came as weather officials expressed concern over the possibility of more trouble resulting from tornadoes, the onset of the hurricane season and flooding from the melt of heavy snowpacks in the West.

Our local chapter's share of the $12 million goal is $20,929, according to Bernon R. Erickson, chairman of the Berkeley and West Contra Costa Chapters.

Contributions should be mailed to: Red Cross Emergency Disaster Fund, 2116 Allston Way, Berkeley 94704.

Plans are bubbling for Albany's birthday

The Albany Veterans' Memorial Building will be available for three days of special activities for Albany's 75th anniversary celebration on Sept. 23-25.

There will be exhibits, concerts, dance demonstrations and other events calling attention to the city and its citizens.

Tentative plans proposed by the anniversary committee include tours of homes built prior to 1913 and historic exhibits in business district windows and a commemorative book about Albany.

The committee also proposed contacting all other Albany in the U.S. and worldwide, asking those cities to send greetings and memorabilia for display.

The culmination of the celebration will be a parade on Sunday, Sept. 25, in conjunction with the Solano Stroll Committee.

Albany Baptist Church is planning a display of historical material, marking the church's 75th anniversary as well as the city's. Albany Senior Center has asked members to bring artifacts to a potluck dinner.

John Sweeney, manager of Summit Bank, has been named treasurer of the group, which is now selling tickets for an anniversary promotion to raise funds to finance various activities.

Chairperson Fern Luoma asks that all residents who own 1908 vintage clothing, needlework, quilts, household goods or Albany photographs to write the 75th Anniversary Committee, 634 Cornell Ave., Albany 94706.

sewer tests planned; smoke, colored water used to stop leaks

The East Bay infiltration and inflow study and the sanitary district are testing local sewer collection systems to find sewer problems.

The study is being conducted in El Cerrito, Kensington and Richmond beginning June 13, and is scheduled for weekdays during the first week of August.

The test crews will be blowing smoke or pouring colored water into parts of the sewer system to trace leaks and faulty or improper connections occur. The smoke is non-toxic, clean and harmless to humans, pets, and material goods.

The smoke will not enter buildings which are properly sealed and vented. Residents may wish to make certain that their basements or floor drains are filled with water. They should check windows and ventilation systems to make sure they should leak occur.

The smoke can be tied or kept in, for the safety of test crews. The smoke, particularly in the Kensington area, is used in the rear of lots and it may be necessary for residents to enter these yards.

Residents are requested to advise the chief of the testing crew if any leakage does occur. It will clear up any moments with proper ventilation. If residents have any questions, they should feel free to ask the crew chief.

The colored water can stain skin or clothing but is non-toxic, non-harmful to humans and pets. The water is approved for environmental use by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Residents need not be home during the test. All public utilities are notified of each day's test schedule. Vehicles and vehicles will be properly identified with tags.

The test crews will place doorhangers throughout the neighborhood a week or so before testing and deliver speeches 24 hours before testing. Personal contacts will be made with businesses and churches. On the day of testing, the crew chief will be available to help and to answer questions.

For information call the East Bay Infiltration/Inflow Study at 444-3866. To report trouble call the Stege Sanitary District at 524-4667 or Beverly Walmsley at 524-4667. To note test effects, see the crew chief or call the sewer inspection consultant at 944-5770.

Softball pitcher who wouldn't quit when she was behind

By DICK OXTOT

ALBANY — She had difficulty getting the ball over the plate during her first two seasons as pitcher for Albany High's softball team.

Last year she averaged more than eight walks per game and gave up plenty of hits and runs as Albany went on to defeat nine times against three wins in ACAL competition. During the 1983 season, she didn't see any action until the fifth game of the season because of a knee injury.

But Renee Davis is not a quitter. After two losing seasons, she resolved to turn her pitching fortunes around and improve the team's record during her final season. Her two coaches had been unable to give her much pitching instruction, so at the suggestion of her third coach, Teri Benson, Davis, 18, attended the Baiswick pitching camp this summer to learn the "windmill" style.

"But Baiswick thought I was better at the 'sling' style," she said. "I did learn the techniques of windmill but I don't have as much power as I did with the 'slingshot.' But he encouraged and, after that, I threw every day — with anybody who would catch for me, bringing up my speed, changing speeds and learning sinkers and risers and

About her previous season, "I decided that, obviously, I had the wrong attitude. I have to be more aggressive, I have to learn it's me against the batter!" Concerning all the walks last year: "This year I told myself: They're going to have to work and hit their way on. I'm not gonna let them in."

Her love for softball kept Davies from graduating last year and accepting a job offer. Participating in a Regional Occupational Program class in banking, she earned enough credits to graduate ahead of her class.

"But that would mean I couldn't play softball," Davies said. "So I turned down the jobs and took four classes. Albany so I could play softball, although I'd completed my requirements and could have graduated in January."

Early in the practice season Davies suffered the severe knee injury that threatened to keep her out of softball for the season.

"I was really depressed," she said. "I thought, I didn't graduate early, I'm gonna miss my senior year and now I'm even gonna play."

But Davies didn't give up. "I had to start training from day one," she recalled.

First, her knee was in a cast and she was given codeine for the pain. She set her crutches aside and tried to make it to the room. The codeine made her sick, so she had to stop taking it.

The cast was replaced by a knee brace about two weeks earlier than expected, "because I'm an athlete," she said, "and the knee apparently had the strength to heal faster than a non-athlete's."

So for the first 4 ACAL games, Davies coached first base and worked out as much as she could, impatiently waiting for her knee to mend. Her debut finally came in the fifth game, against Encinal.

And what a debut it was. Davies pitched a two-hit, extra-inning shutout, which Albany won 1 to 0. The 5-foot-3 lefthander followed with another shutout.

The walks, which had plagued her in the past, dropped to a minimum. She led the Cougar girls into the ACAL playoffs with a 7-4 record and was recognized as one of the three best pitchers in the ACAL.

Davies' plans may not include softball. She intends to attend Cal State Hayward with a business major and accept one of her part-time banking job offers.

"That probably wouldn't leave any time for softball, and I'd have to start training right now for next season," she said. "The competition in college softball is really tough."

You're the drivers who have fewer accidents.

That's why Farmers created our 30-60 package auto policy. If you qualify, you could save substantially on your premiums.

Farmers Insurance Group is working constantly to keep the costs of insurance down, and the amount of protection up. And this 30-60 package auto policy is one way we do it. Why not call me?

Outdoor summer jobs offered by state

The California Conservation Corps, in preparation for an expected federal grant, is now accepting applications to hire 1,000 unemployed young men and women for three months of park development work.

The CCC program will run from July 1 through Sept. 30. Young people between the ages of 18 and 23, living near the CCC's Bollinger Canyon Fire Center or San Francisco Center are encouraged to apply. The pay is minimum wage, $581 per month, for the non-residential program.

"This is a chance to find out what the Corps is all about," said CCC Director Bud Sheble. "Spend the next few months doing some valuable conservation work in your local area, and pick up solid work experience at the same time."

Summer corps members will work on park landscaping, trail construction, and urban and rural tree-planting. A one-week training period is also planned emphasizing tool safety, first aid, and physical training. Assisting the corps members during the program will be members of the original Civilian Conservation Corps of the 1930's.

Applications for the summer corps must be filed by June 24. Applicants must be residents of California, unemployed, and not on probation or parole.

For more information and applications, contact the local state Employment Development Department office, or the CCC's Bollinger Canyon or San Francisco centers. Those interested may also call the CCC's toll-free number (800) 952-5522, for details.

E.C. Legion splits pair

MODESTO — El Cerrito's Louis Post 340 American Legion defeated All-Northern California high school pitcher Dennis Wend Modesto, 7-5, Monday to salvage a win of Monday's doubleheader at Modesto Junior College.

The Modesto Legionnaires won the game 6-5 with a two-run rally in the bottom of the seventh. Walks and errors set up a sacrifice fly that was fatal to EC pitcher Phillip in the opener.

Cerrito improved its seasonal record to 6-3 with two runs of its own in the top of the seventh of the second game, but had to withstand yet another two-run rally by the hosts in their last at-bat.

Reliever Brian Nichols saved the win for starter Greg Chatman by inducing a bases-loaded grounder back to the mound, after walking the first man he faced to fill the bags.

Wend showed his All-NorCal form as a utility player by stroking a solo homer for Modesto in the sixth inning of the game he pitched and ultimately lost.

Terry Brown caught the second game as Nichols was given a respite at first base. Backup catcher Steve Walker is on vacation and coach Larry Quirico handed the tools of the trade to his All-NorCal outfielder. There were no stolen bases in that game, nor were there any passed balls.

Brown, fresh off a three-game All-Star series in which he represented the state of California against Oklahoma's best high school seniors, drove in two runs with three hits in seven trips to the plate for the day.

He also scored three times.

His teammate on that California All-Star team, pitcher Brian Brooks, played first base in the first game and drove in three runs with an RBI fielder's choice and a two-run single.

Chatman and third baseman Antoine Pickett each had two hits for El Cerrito in the nightcap and James Mitchell drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

Hagen Post 340 is on the road again today for a Ninth District game at Santa Rosa.

Cards go north, come back empty

UREKA — Ed Hatzell's El Cerrito Cardinals took their annual trip this weekend and suffered a game sweep at the hands of a semi-pro baseball power and longtime intrastate rival, the Humboldt Crabs.

The Cards were beaten 5-1 in Saturday's series opener and dropped the second of Sunday's doubleheader, 4-6.

"Our pitchers couldn't get the ball over the plate. We could have won two Sunday if we threw strikes," said Hatzell, after watching his seasonal record slip from a respectable 7-3 to 7-6 in two days.

"They home-runned us to death, though," admitted Hatzell of his pitchers' fate when they did get the ball in the strike zone.

Humboldt belted a total of five round trippers in the three games, including one three-run shot in the bottom of the seventh by first baseman "Chevy" Vega that ended Sparky Harrison's bid for a save in relief of starter Don Cross during Sunday's 5-3 loss in the first game.

The Crabs tallied seven runs in their last at-bat in Sunday's nightcap to wipe out another Cardinal lead. "Babe" Schoenhofer blasted a homer in each of the three games for Humboldt.

Hatzell said third baseman Tom Kenon and outfielder Kevin Sudduth wielded the most productive Card bats in the series.

El Cerrito visits Fontanetti Sporting Goods of San Jose for a 12 p.m. game Saturday and entertains the same San Jose team in a Sunday doubleheader at Cerrito Vista Park, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Carlson Motel sign more a hideaway

Annex residents win 10-foot victory

By CATHERINE SCHUTZ
Staff Writer

RICHMOND — Richmond Annex residents, still seething over the construction of a motel in their neighborhood, have blocked the builder's plans to erect a 40-foot-high sign next to the freeway.

Instead, the Carlson Motel will be advertised by a 30-foot, lighted sign that will be partially obscured by the trees along the freeway.

A group of Annex residents appeared before the city's Sign Review Committee Monday, prior to the City Council meeting, to object to the height of the sign for the motel, now under construction on Carlson Boulevard at Tehama Street.

Many residents, and the Richmond Annex Neighborhood Council as well, are angry that the motel could be constructed without any community review. The land is properly zoned for the motel and the developers needed only to secure the building permits.

They point to another Carlson Boulevard motel two blocks away that advertises adult movies, saying they fear the new motel will attract a disreputable clientele.

But developer David Peck has stated he is building a first-class facility that will be rated by Triple A.

The developers sought a variance to allow the 40-foot sign on the grounds that the higher sign would be more visible from the freeway.

"It's very important to the motel to be visible from the freeway," said Ray Herne of Pacific Neon, which applied for the variance on behalf of the motel owners. "Their success depends upon people being able to find the motel."

Peck, of Davco Construction, one of three partners in the motel venture, also said the higher sign was necessary "to attract the right kind of business." He said the motel will cater to travelers and business people and will be "the only motel in the area you would want your relatives to stay in."

Peck said the company had invested $700,000 already in the motel.

Annex resident Tom Hardwick, of Oscar Street, said the neighborhood was becoming known as "warehouse plaza" because of the motels and said the city needed to change its regulations "so things are not sneaked through."

Mary Lumsden, speaking for the Annex Neighborhood Council, said the 40-foot sign was "not compatible with the neighborhood."

Ann Hoppe, president of the council, said the lighted sign would detract from the views of nearby homes.

Planning Director Charles Woodward said the request failed to meet the hardship conditions necessary before a variance for a 40-foot sign could be granted. The staff opposed the variance.

He also said the staff analysis showed most freeway travelers would not be able to see the sign, even if it were 40 feet high, until they had passed both the north and southbound Carlson exits.

"An illuminated sign at the proposed size and height would have a detrimental influence on the adjacent (residential) districts," the planning report said.

After the vote was taken, Peck said he expected the partners would construct the permitted 30-foot sign and not try to appeal the 40-foot sign to the City Council.

He said he did not think the 30- or 40-foot sign would make much difference one way or the other, since the freeway trees would block even the 40-foot sign especially for southbound traffic.

Kanti Patel, another of the motel partners, said he expected to ask CalTrans, the state transportation department, to trim the trees to make the sign more visible.

The Sign Review Committee voted unanimously to reject the 40-foot sign. The committee includes Councilmen Al Silva and James McMillan, Richard Kerbavaz and Charles Wong. There is one vacancy.
